1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over The Good Cook literature article. Applicant is referred to paragraph no. 3, Paper No. 032404 and to paragraph no. 6, Paper No. 082504.

3. Claims 1-15 are also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Strong.

Applicant is referred to paragraph no. 4, Paper No. 032404 and to paragraph no. 6, Paper No. 082504.

4. Applicant's arguments filed April 28, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Although the literature article does not refer to the contact between the chicken pieces and marinade as occurring by immersion, the literature article still achieves results substantially equivalent to those obtained by applicant, viz. permeation of each piece throughout by liquid marinade. The "Teriyaki Broiled Chicken" (page 108) discloses that the marinade is poured over the chicken pieces in a shallow dish, after which the chicken pieces are pressed into the marinade. This clearly satisfies applicant's requirement that the solution permeate each piece throughout.

In Strong, individual chicken pieces are marinated, and these pieces are equivalent to applicant's slices in that the chicken is subdivided in each instance. The particular size of each piece is not critical and merely depends upon personal preference and consumer appeal. Further, the repeated dropping in and removal from the marinade in Strong over a 15 minute time period will achieve results substantially equivalent to those obtained by applicant's immersion step for less than 60 seconds. The 14.7% marinade pick-up in Strong is not contrary to anything achieved by applicant, especially since applicant does not claim any specific marinade pick-up. The immersion time period used by applicant merely depends upon the thickness of each chicken piece, which is a totally expected result.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
